October 31, 2019

This year, Mount Vernon Avenue School participated in its 4th Annual “Picture Me Tomorrow” day.

On Thursday, October 31, 2019, scholars in every grade were encouraged to come to school dressed in outfits that represent their future career choices. Such as police officers, judges, teachers, construction workers, lawyers, doctors, astronauts and other career outfits.

The event replaces the traditional “Halloween” celebration where children dress as witches, ghosts, superheroes or other fictitious characters. Scholars were introduced to career exploration leading up to the event through class discussions, career interest surveys, projects and essay writing activities.

In addition to the career lessons and activities listed above, the scholars paraded around the school displaying their future careers during their scheduled time and with their parent’s permission; participated in “Trunk-a-Treat” at the end of the school day.
